

How A Good CEO Should Be: - Fictional Story

A fictional corporate story, I wish comes true for every organization!

In this fictional story, the unique activity of writing handwritten notes of appreciation reveals the importance of gratitude and teamwork within an organization.

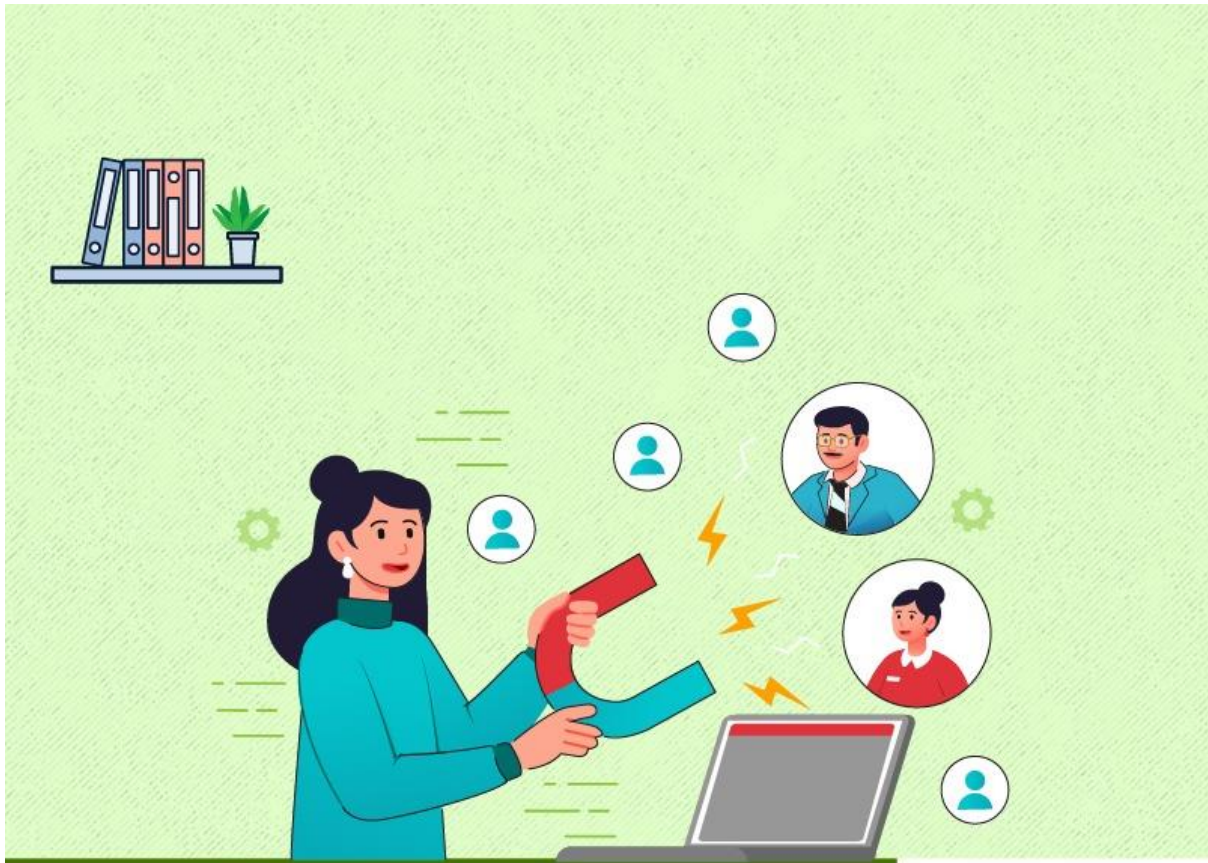

There are various traits that make a good CEO/founder.

I believe this one shown in this fictional story written by me, is also a big trait.

Once the HR of a medium sized Company, created a unique activity for team bounding for the entire organization

Here randomly any 2 employees across any hierarchy would be chosen. And they would have to write a hand written note of appreciation to each other

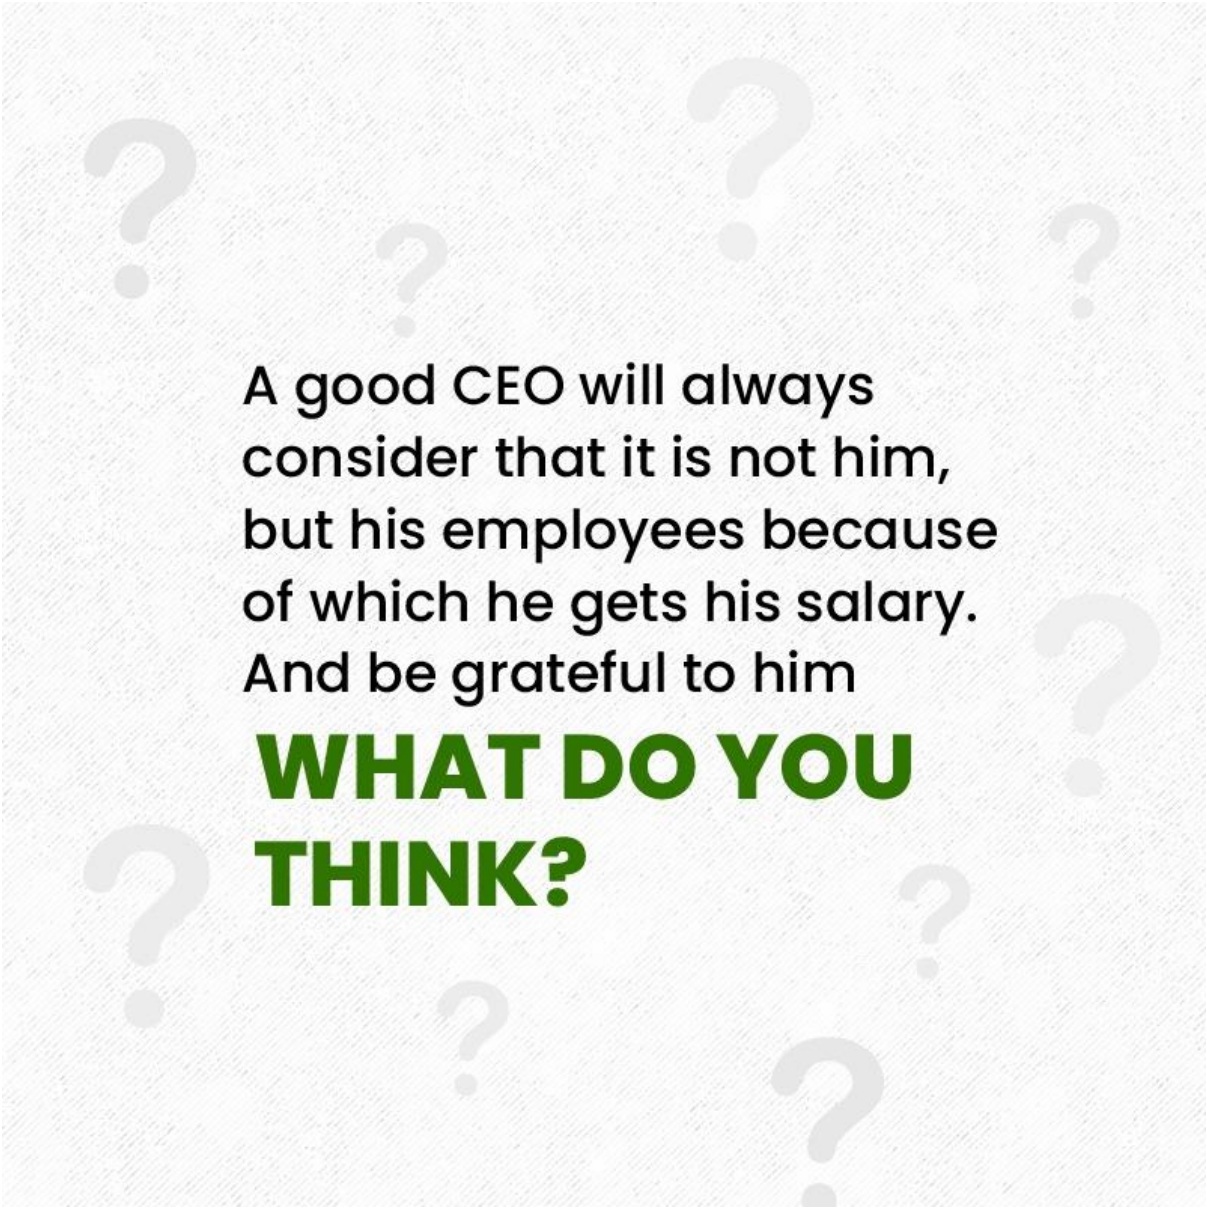

One pair chosen was the CEO himself and one of his loyal employee. Thus they wrote a note of appreciation for each other.

After that, when the HR saw their notes, they had written exactly the same words for each other. This is what it was.

A good CEO will always consider that it is not him, but his employees because of which he gets his salary.
And be grateful to him

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Reach out to us

+91-9970838025

hello@deepeshchandran.com

/deepeshc_storyteller

www.linkedin.com/in/deepeshc